

Saved with your support

World Land Trust has been saving tropical forests and other critically threatened habitats since 1989. A few examples of conservation in action are highlighted below.

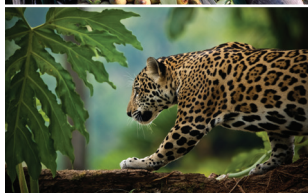

2,106 Acres in Mexico

In 2018 WLT was able to fund our partner, Grupo Ecologico Sierra Gorda (GESG) to protect a rich mosaic of forest habitats that are home to everything from big cats to the Bumblebee Hummingbird.

3,306 Acres in Bolivia

Buy an Acre enabled our Bolivian partner, Asociacion Armonia to extend Barba Azul Reserve—a seasonally flooded savanna where forested islands provide refuge to a wealth of wildlife including the Endangered Blue-throated Macaw.

1,818 Acres in Belize

The Jungle for Jaguars appeal enabled our partner Corozal Sustainable Future Initiative (CSFI) to secure a vital wildlife corridor for Jaguars and other wildlife, extending a protected forest rich in biodiversity in northern Belize.

Saving Wildlife includes the people too

This is Miguel Flores. He is one of the rangers funded through WLT's Keepers of the Wild programme, working to protect the Sierra Gorda Reserve in Mexico. Our partners employ rangers from the local community to patrol the forests guarding them against threats such as poaching and illegal logging.

£100 AN ACRE
£50 HALF AN ACRE
£25 QUARTER OF AN ACRE

For each £100 donation to World Land Trust's Buy an Acre project, one acre of threatened habitat will be purchased and protected for wildlife in perpetuity—saving endangered species from extinction, tackling climate change and safeguarding some of the world's last remaining wilderness.

Join us to save land and save species, one acre at a time

With your support, our overseas conservation partners can buy land that is threatened by deforestation—and protect it by creating and extending nature reserves. Since 1989 WLT has funded the purchase of more than 774,000 acres of tropical forest and other critical habitats that would have been lost otherwise.

Our overseas conservation partners

WLT works closely with its 29 overseas partners in 20 different countries across the globe.

"In a world where wildlife battles to survive, I take heart in the work being carried out by the World Land Trust. WLT isn't about talking it is about action. By donating to WLT, you are taking action to save and restore wilderness to protect the future of wildlife, and indeed humans."

How it works

Buy an Acre projects are chosen to save maximum biodiversity in areas where our overseas conservation partners can purchase and protect land for £100 an acre.

How will it make a difference?

Buy an Acre funds have enabled WLT's overseas partners to create protected reserves in many different countries including Belize, Ecuador, Guatemala, Mexico and Argentina saving tropical forests and other vital habitats from destruction.

How will my money be spent?

WLT's overseas partners use it to purchase land through direct land purchase or through leases where purchase isn't an option. Partners work with local communities to manage the land and with WLT's ongoing support they also employ rangers to tackle issues like poaching, illegal logging and wild fires.

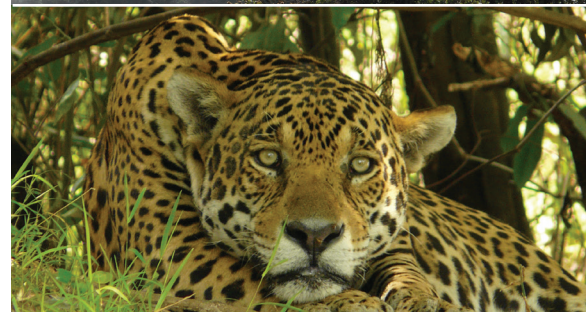

Protect habitats

Buy an Acre gives our overseas partners the vital resources they need to purchase land and protect it—whether it is a wildlife corridor linking isolated reserves, or tropical forest threatened by deforestation.

Fight climate change

Intact, healthy forests are the green lungs of the planet, taking CO₂ from the atmosphere and locking it away. Saving the world's last remaining forests is a crucial way of tackling climate change head on.

Save species

Buy an Acre projects target areas with high biodiversity that are also home to threatened wildlife like the Jaguar, and species yet to be discovered. Saving land can prevent extinction.

Every donation to Buy an Acre helps save a whole ecosystem, not just big charismatic mammals like Jaguars, but the less glamorous and equally important species of reptiles, insects and fungi as well. Your donations save real acres in real places.
