SAVING BORNEO'S ORANGUTAN CORRIDORS Partner: Hutan Land: 10 Acres Target: £150,000

RECONNECTING A TORN RAINFOREST

In 2013 and 2017, WLT supporters came together to save land for the Keruak and Pangi corridors in Malaysian Borneo with our partner Hutan. This year, a chance has emerged to build on that legacy by securing a further two extremely strategic properties at Pangi. This is a landscape dominated by plantations and fragmented to breaking point but if you help us expand this corridor, we can offer a safer home and more room to roam to Critically Endangered orangutans, 214 other mammal species such as the heavily trafficked Sunda Pangolin, 314 bird species (including eight hornbill species Hutan is supporting through a dedicated nesting programme), 101 reptile species and much more.

With your help

Your donations will fund Hutan's purchase of two new reserves of incredible strategic value. The impact of these costly properties will far exceed their 10 acres: they will link an existing reserve to the river – a safe passage for swimming elephants to migrate north – and shield a much larger (and as of yet unprotected) expanse of rainforest further west along the river bend, making its conversion to crops less likely.

Only 250 Borneo Pygmy Elephants are estimated to be left in the Lower Kinabatangan Floodplain, and habitat fragmentation is forcing them into private land. Donations to our new appeal will protect a crucial corridor for these gentle giants to swim to either side of the river.

Kinabatangan's orangutan population has crashed from 20,000 in 1900 to an estimated 785 today. Our partner Hutan has spent decades saving land for them – help them secure more acres!
